New York, June 14 .- When the trial of Erastus Wiman, charged with forgery, was resumed to-day, Mr. Wiman described to the jury the circumstances which led up to the writing of the letter of February 20, 1823.

Mr. Wiman explained that Lawyer Mac-Farland had telegraphed him to come to his office. He did so without delay and was then told by Lawyer MacFarland that gross MacFarland told me, "said Mr. Wiman, "that I would have to transfer all my property to Mr. Dun and that my wife was to make a similar transfer of all her property. I was also to acknowledge in a letter to Mr. Jum any wrong-doing. This letter I wrote without delay."

"Were you much perturbed at the time?"

"I was almost beside myself with the awful extent and suddenness of my ruin.

Mr. Wiman went on to say that the letter was mailed by him to Mr. Dun.

The letter had subsequently been seen by Mr. McFarland. The inter had said that the tone of the letter was satisfactory to Mr. Dun.

"I then transferred all my property to Mr. Dun. My wife, who was in California at the time the trouble came, lost no time in returning fast, and she, too, turned over everything she had. I also transferred to Mr. Dun all I had in the way of stocks, bends, and securities."

Mr. Wiman said that Lawyer McFarland had solemnly assured him that no action would be taken against him. He made the defendant promise, however, that under no circumstances would be (Wiman) connect himself with a rival firm.

Mr. Wiman thought he had seen Mr. Dun looking over the books at different times. He admitted, in answer to Mr. Wellman's question, that Mr. Dun trusted him implicitly.

Mr. Wiman after some hesitation reluctantly admitted that he had.

Several points were agreed on. Although Representative Bryan's scheme for a currency issue to construct the canal found some lavor it was definitely abandoned, and Sanator Norgan's plan will furnish the foundation for the bill, which provides for the usual method of raising funds by means of a bend issue.

It was practically decided that the government's starte of bonds shall be $10,050,000. The proportionate shares of the governments of Nicaragua and Costa Rica, or the amount to be issued to the maritime company, was not discussed. The members agreed to insert in the bill a provise that the canal company must at some early date (probably January I, 1850) satisfy the Secretary of the Treasury that all outstanding debts or contracts have been canceled and satisfied, that the affairs of the maritime company's auxiliary, the contract company, have been settled and that that company has gone out of existence.

The government will guarantee the funds with which to settle the affairs of the present com-pany, but matters must be arranged so that the government will find no compilications on its hands, and this will be made the first condition hands, and this will be made the first condition of government control. Representative Mailory, of Florida, who is to draft the bill, will present a clause covering this point at the next meeting. The subcommittee consists of four Demo rats, Representatives Mailory, Wise, of Virginia; Geary, of California, and Price, of Louisiana, and two Republicans, Hepburn, of Iowa, and Mahou, of Pennsylvania. Chairman Wise will enlarge the committee by the appointment of another Republican, Bellamy Storer, of Ohlo, and daily meetings will be held until the bill is completed.

POLLUTION OF DRINKING WATER

Excessive Mortality from Typhoid Fever Health Officers Declared Negligent-Wells Affected by Percolations of Filth-Dreaded Racilli in Milk-One Case in Ten Fatal.

The Medical Society of the District of Columbia had a hearing yesterday before the District Committee on the question of proper sewage for the city of Washington. The rep resentatives of the society who spoke yesterday declared that they had no plan to propose and were not interested in any projects. They simply wanted the matter of sanitation thoroughly considered.

The members of the society who addressed the committee were Dr. Samuel C. Bussey, Dr. Magruder, and Dr. W. W. Johnson. In his remarks Dr. Bussey called special attention at the outset to the excessive illness and mortality in the District from typhoid fever mortality in the District from typhold lever and other malarial diseases, which he classed together. While other classes of disease have been on the decrease, this most danger-ous malady was steadily increasing. There must be some reason for it, and he thought improper sewage was the chief cause.

There were, he continued, no instances of the finding of typhoid bacilli in Potomac water, but that was no proof that they might not annear there at any time. Typhold dis-

Typhoid dis-eases resulted usually from the pollution of drinking water, and this occurred most fre-quently in cities, because it was most difficult to prevent the soil from becoming impregated with all sorts of fifth by percolation, so that water from wells was sure to be affected. He added that water with typhoid bacilli in with a south of the soil of the soil of the soil of the milks are souther frequent cause of the milk was another frequent cause of the

At present, Dr. Bussey declared, about one case in every ten in the District was fatal. This large proportion was due to bad sewage or the lack of it. department was not doing its duty in this respect, in answer to which remark Mr. Rich-ardson, of the committee, said that it was beardson, of the committee, said that it was because they had not had a sufficient appropriation. Dr. Bussey attributed the frequency of diarrhoral diseases and tuberculosis to the bad condition of drainage and the use of pumps in the city. He declared that every case of typhoid in the Children's hospital last year could be distinctly traced to the use of pump water of the kind he alluded to. To purify water two things were necessary: First, sedimentation, and finally filtration. But it was very rare that these means of purifying drinking water were employed.

the city as illustrated by a series of charts h Mr. Bell, of this city, interrupted Dr. Busse in his statements long enough to urge the great danger to the city from the public one of the bathing beach, claiming that is even a great source of illness, on account of the flow of sewage therein, and the necessary contagion from absorption fad swailowing of even small quantities of the foul water.

Dr. Magruder of plained in detail some charts suspended on the walls of the committee room, with special reference to the location of the plague spots of the city and the statistics of disease in these neighborhoods. He stated that there were 200 pumps in the city, and commented with vigor on the chb and flow of sewage in the James creek canal sewer. canal sewer.

Dr. Johnston then took up the question of

New York, June 14.—The professional operators who usually take the short side of the market were in control of the stock exchange today, and as is customary in their campaigns carried the war on with rumor as the chief weapon of attack. As against Sugar it was urged that the schedule of the tariff affecting the product of the resining company would in all probability be changed adversely to the interests of the trust, and it was hinted that some of the insiders had already unloaded, having seen danger alread. The pressure to sell the stock was fell at the very opening, and was kept up almost steadily to the close.

There were occasional railies, but at each recovery fresh stock came out and the quotations fell off, until shortly before the close 87, the low point, was reached, being 4½ below yesterday's fund sale, and the closing price to-day was only 3½ above the bottom figure. "Then the thought came to me to try my power a little further. Calling a messenger, I seat to my room for a bundle of manuscript and sorbed from it everything that would do for a Christmas number. You know," he added parenthetically, "that I always keep a stock of material on hand ready for all needs and seasons. I took these Christmas things up, one by one, and brought them to his attention, and he necepted each one and made a place for it in this holiday number.

"Then he called his assistant in and gave instructions for making up the copy, and I took him away with me and gave him a royal good time for a week. When he got back to the office it was too late to make any changes, and so you see the number has come out with nothing but my work. And a very good number it is, too," he concluded complacently.

"But what do you expect to gain by it?" I asked. "The story will come cut, and it will do you no good, but quite the reverse."

"You are all wrong," replied Lightiy quietly, "The story will not come out. You can see that Aldeson must be the last man to toll it. And he could have no object in doing so, especially as the number has already made such a good impression."

favorable, but flattering in the extreme.

"Patd for?" said I. not a little disgusted with the whole business, and particularly at being made a confidant of.

"Yes," he laughed, "but it goes just the same. And now," he added, with a slight show of hesitaney, "for the other matter," "Go ahead," I answered not very graciously, considering that I was dining with him. "I might as well hear it all now."

"You asked me what I expected to gain by it. You know Lottie Underwood." I started at the name, but nodded with what composure I could command. "That dear girl," said Lightly, "has promised to marry me as soon as I have won a place in literature—in said Lightly. "has promised to marry me as soon as I have won a place in literature—in fact, as soon as I have established standing with any of the leading magazines. This settles that point." To emphasize his meaning he tapped All the World triumphantly.

"But surely," I said, "you would not consider that fair. You would not be willing that should tree?"

"Same thing," she answered airily. "He will never achieve either. It was my way of letting him down easily."
"Letitia, listen to me," I said, "Lightly has written the entire Christmas number of All the World." At this Letty looked at me reproachfully, "Lick," she said, "where have you been dining?"
"No, it is not that," I protested. "I dined at the club, and Lightly told me himself, and he showed me the magazine and asked me to be his best man, and we had only one bottle between us." sider that fair. You would not be willing that she should know"—
"All's fair in love, my boy. And I want you to be my best man."

I managed to get off with some half-promise, and then pleading an engagement I got out of the club as quickly as possible and into a cab and gave the driver the number of Letty Underwood's house.

The dear girl—I could have choked Lightly for using the words: they were in my heart whenever I thought of her, which was all the time—was at home and received me with her usual sweet welcome. But I held her at arm's length, and with all the sternness that I could command exclaimed:
